Total returns are calculated using the sell (exit) price, net of management fees and gross of tax as if distributions of income have been reinvested at the actual distribution reinvestment price. The actual returns received by an investor will depend on the timing, buy and exit prices of individual transactions. Return of capital and the performance of your investment in the fund are not guaranteed. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. Figures showing a period of less than one year have not been adjusted to show an annual total return. Figures for periods of greater than one year are on a per annum compound basis. The current benchmark may not have been the benchmark over all periods shown in the above chart and tables. The calculation of the benchmark performance links the performance of previous benchmarks and the current benchmark over the relevant time periods.

Commentary

The March quarter was marked by unique political, economic and market events. The storming of Capitol Hill in the US, followed by the impeachment process of then President Trump, the spike in COVID cases (particularly in the UK where new cases peaked at 68,000 on a single day) and the strange market behaviour surrounding subreddit Wall Street Bets and Gamestop. However, despite the noise, global markets performed strongly over the quarter with the MSCI World index rising 5.7%, reflecting broad positive market performance across regions. The positive performance was driven by the continued recovery in major economies supported by significant fiscal spending, accommodative monetary policy, and the ongoing vaccine rollout. Despite the general positive performance, the quarter was marked by periods of volatility, largely triggered by a sharp uptick in bond yields as future inflation concerns grew.

The Emerging Companies Fund returned -1.8% (Wholesale -1.7%) underperforming its benchmark index over the quarter by 5.2% with our technology stocks explaining most of this underperformance. Technology has been the strongest sectoral contributor over a twelve-month horizon however gave back some of these gains over the March 2021 quarter. The largest detractors included employment referencing technology company's CV Check and Xref, sales enablement software-as-a-service company Bigtincan and document productivity company Nitro. We continue to believe globally focussed software technology has attractive long term thematic drivers. The renewable energy utility companies out of New Zealand were detractors after Contact Energy and Meridian Energy were significantly down weighted in a planned rebalance of the S&P Global Clean Energy Index.
