Section 8. Keep my cover

I would like my current and future insurance cover to continue in the event that my superannuation account has not received any contributions or other amounts for a continuous period of 16 months, and I understand that premiums will continue to be deducted on a monthly basis. This election will apply to all current and future investment options and any future changes to my insurance cover through my account, including any cover for death, total and permanent disablement and income protection.

Yes  No

Why do I have to answer?

Under superannuation legislation, your insurance cover will end if your superannuation account has not received any contributions or other amounts for a continuous period of 16 months. This is to ensure that arrangements for insurance in super are appropriate and members are not paying for insurance that they do not know about or premiums that inappropriately erode their retirement savings. However, you can make an election to stop your cover from ending. If you do not make an election and your cover ends, the insurer may need to assess your health in order to restart your cover. If you make the election, you can still cancel your cover at any time. We encourage you to seek advice from a licensed financial planner before you make a decision regarding your insurance cover.

Section 9. Duty of Disclosure

A person who enters into a life insurance contract in respect of your life has a duty, before entering into the contract, to tell us anything that he or she knows, or could reasonably be expected to know, that may affect our decision to provide the insurance and on what terms.

The person entering into the contract has this duty until we agree to provide the insurance.

The person entering into the contract has the same duty before he or she extends, varies or reinstates the contract.

The person entering into the contract does not need to tell us anything that:

- Reduces the risk we insure you for; or
- Is common knowledge; or
- We know or should know as an insurer; or
- We waive your duty to tell us about.

If you do not tell us something that you know, or could reasonably be expected to know, that may affect our decision to provide the insurance and on what terms, this may be treated as a failure by the person entering into the contract to tell us something that he or she must tell us.

If the person entering the contract does not tell us something

In exercising the following rights, we may consider whether different types of cover can constitute separate contracts of life insurance. If they do, we may apply the following rights separately to each type of cover.

If the person entering into the contract does not tell us anything he or she is required to, and we would not have provided the insurance if he or she had told us, we may avoid the contract within 3 years of entering into it.

If we choose not to avoid the contract, we may, at any time, reduce the amount of insurance provided. This would be worked out using a formula that takes into account the premium that would have been payable if he or she had told us everything he or she should have.

However, if the contract has a surrender value, or provides cover on death, we may only exercise this right within 3 years of entering into the contract.

If we choose not to avoid the contract or reduce the amount of insurance provided, we may, at any time vary the contract in a way that places us in the same position we would have been in if he or she had told us everything he or she should have. However, this right does not apply if the contract has a surrender value or provides cover on death.

If the failure to tell us is fraudulent, we may refuse to pay a claim and treat the contract as if it never existed.
