1 How a pension works

Superannuation (super) is a tax effective way to save for your retirement given that the Government provides tax concessions and other benefits. For many Australians super will be their largest asset.

When you retire you can use your super to commence an account-based income stream (pension). A pension offers many benefits including regular income payments and tax-free investment earnings. If you're receiving a pension from your super, you may also be eligible to claim the Government Age Pension. For assistance about the Age Pension, please contact Centrelink on 132 300.

Transition to retirement

If you have reached your preservation age (see table below), and have not yet retired, you may be able to supplement your income offered by a transition to retirement pension.

By commencing a transition to retirement pension, you could receive an income stream from your super to supplement your income. If you continue to work full-time you may be able to boost your super savings through a salary sacrificing arrangement.

We recommend you seek financial advice if you are considering starting a transition to retirement pension.

The accounts available and who can contribute

Australian Ethical Super offers two types of accounts:

- accumulation – this account (often called the accumulation division) gathers and builds your savings. Benefits are usually paid out as a lump sum or transferred to a pension account on retirement. Insurance is available in an accumulation account. For information on accumulation accounts, please refer to the Super Additional Information Booklet and the Insurance Guide.
- account based pension – this account (often called the pension division) allows you to draw on your savings in regular payments during retirement or in some circumstances, pre-retirement. Insurance is not available in an account based pension. This Booklet provides information about pensions for people in retirement and for those transitioning to retirement.

If you are contributing to super, your contributions will be allocated to the accumulation division of the Fund.

The Fund maintains a separate account for each member. It is possible to maintain both an accumulation account and a pension account. The account records all transactions such as contributions, rollovers and withdrawals, the investment option(s) you have selected and their current value.

You can keep track of your super by logging into your account via our member portal.

1 How a pension works

Commencing a pension

Once you have met a relevant condition of release¹, you can commence a pension from your superannuation monies held within the Fund or from another superannuation fund. Before your pension starts, you will need to combine all of the superannuation monies you wish to use to commence your pension into one account.

If you are commencing a pension with more than one rollover and/or contribution, an Australian Ethical Super 'holding' account will be set up for you which will incur the standard fees and costs as our Super product. Insurance will be switched off so no premiums will be payable. Your funds will be invested in the accumulation equivalent of your chosen Pension investment option(s) until all expected funds are received and your account has been rolled over to the Pension. Please see the Super PDS and Super Additional Information Booklet for more information.

Your pension will be invested in the investment option(s) you choose. If you do not select an investment option for your pension your account will be invested in the Conservative investment option.

The minimum amount you need to start your pension with the Fund is $30,000.

The transfer balance cap means that you cannot transfer more than $1.7 million to start a pension account or multiple pension accounts across all superannuation funds. (Transition to retirement pension accounts are not included). If you transfer an amount above this cap you will have to remove the excess plus deemed earnings from the pension account. Additional tax may also be payable. Refer to the ato.gov.au/individuals/Super page for more information on the transfer cap.

Once you commence an account based pension, you will have a personal transfer balance cap and transfer balance account. You can view your personal transfer balance cap on ATO online services.

If you exceed your transfer balance cap, we may receive a notice from the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) requiring us to remove an excess amount from your pension account. If this occurs, we may commute the excess amount to an accumulation account.

Any excess amount commuted to an accumulation account will be invested in Balanced (accumulation) unless you instruct us to invest it in another option.

Once you have commenced your pension, you cannot make additional contributions to your account. If you decide to contribute further money, you will need to transfer your benefits back to an accumulation account and then commence a new pension account.

You should consider if contribution caps or age limits will restrict the contributions you can make to an accumulation account before deciding to recommence your pension.

Further information on contributing to an accumulation account is provided in Section 1 of the Super Additional Information Booklet available at australianethical.com.au/super/pds

You should seek professional advice to understand the options available to you and to consider your personal circumstances.

If you are commencing a transition to retirement pension, or if you wish to continue your insurance cover in the Fund, you may need to have two accounts:

- your pension account
- your accumulation account into which your employer contributions and salary sacrifice contributions can be paid and from which insurance premiums can be deducted.

When you retire you can consolidate your accounts by transferring your pension account back to an accumulation account and commence a new pension.

It is important to consider if you will continue to receive contributions before closing your accumulation account.

Pension payments

The amount you choose to draw from your pension will depend on your lifestyle, any other income sources you have and how much you can afford. You can choose both the frequency of your pension payments and the amount you receive, subject to a minimum annual amount set by the Government. Transition to retirement pensions are also subject to a maximum annual payment amount.

¹ The main conditions of release are permanently retiring after reaching your preservation age, leaving employment after reaching age 60, reaching age 65 or permanent incapacity.

1 How a pension works

Your annual minimum and maximum pension limits are calculated on your pension balance at commencement and then annually at the start of each financial year. If you have nominated to receive the minimum amount from your pension, the amount you will receive will change year to year depending on the value of your pension account on 1 July each year.

If you elect to receive an amount lower than the minimum, we are required to pay you the minimum pension payment.

Commencement of your pension

At the commencement of your pension and at the start of each financial year, you must nominate to receive at least one pension payment for the year. Your pension can be paid monthly, quarterly, six-monthly or annually. Annual payments cannot be paid in July. Pension payments are made in the middle of each month.

If you start a pension before 1 June, a pension payment must be made to you before 30 June of that year. The payment will be as specified by you or at least the proportional amount of the minimum payment based on the number of days in the financial year for which the investment is held.

If you invest in a pension on or after 1 June in any financial year, you can choose whether to have a pension payment in that financial year. However, you must receive a pension payment by 30 June in the following financial year. You can alter the frequency or amount of your pension payments at any time, provided your nominated amount is greater than your minimum pension payment over the course of a financial year.

Each year you will be sent the information required to complete your tax return, including details of any tax withheld from your pension and other information required by Centrelink.

Payments are made by direct credit to your nominated Australian bank account. You can change the account that your pension is paid to at any time by completing the Change of Details form available at australianethical.com.au/pensions/forms. You will need to provide us with a bank statement.

If your pension account is invested in more than one investment option, you can nominate the investment option(s) that your pension payments are drawn from. If you do not select a drawdown order, your pension payments will be drawn proportionally from your investment options.

Important...

You can keep up-to-date with the unit prices and performance of all the investment options through our website or by contacting us.

You can continue to receive a pension until your account balance is fully paid out or you close your account.

It is important to remember that the balance of your account may not be sufficient to pay an income stream for the rest of your life.

When deciding on the level of pension payments you choose to draw from your pension account, you should consider how long your pension needs to last.

1 How a pension works

Account valuation

Your account is subject to market movements and the value of your account will fluctuate with the performance of your investments.

The value of the Fund is the total market value of all of the Fund's assets less the total value of the liabilities of the Fund, including accrued and contingent liabilities. The value of your account is affected by changes in the value of the Fund's assets, the fees and costs charged against your account, payments made out of your account and any provision against your account to meet any Fund liabilities.

Each investment option in the Fund is valued daily. This in turn determines the value of each member's account.

There may be special circumstances when the Fund is valued less frequently, such as during the end of financial year period.

Valuing interests in the Fund when investing and withdrawing

Once an investment option in the Fund is valued, a price is determined for interests (or units) in that investment option. Each investment option within the Fund is unitised. When you switch your investment, change your mix of investment options, or roll out your funds, you are in effect buying and selling units. As such, your investment will be affected by the buy and sell price that applies on the day the action occurs.

The unit price is used when switches or withdrawals are made in order to determine the number of interests to be issued or redeemed. When processing switches or withdrawals, the price used will be the price calculated after the switch or withdrawal request has been received.

Investment switches

Generally, investment switch requests submitted online before 4pm (Sydney time) on a Business Day will be processed using that day's unit price. If the online investment switch is submitted after 4pm (or on a day other than a Business Day) the following Business Day's unit price will be used. An exception to this process is if a pending transaction (such as a contribution) has been received but is yet to be processed. In this case, the pending transaction will be processed first and the investment switch will be processed within 2 Business Days after it was submitted online and will receive the unit price for the day it was processed, not the day it was submitted.

Withdrawing your pension

If you have retired or met another condition of release, you can request a lump sum withdrawal (commutation) from your pension at any time. You can request either a partial withdrawal or a full withdrawal. If you withdraw your entire balance we are required to pay you the pro-rated minimum pension payment before your pension will cease and your account will be closed.

If you have not yet retired or met another condition of release, lump-sum withdrawals from your transition to retirement pension will be limited to any unrestricted non-preserved benefits you hold.

The amount of your unrestricted non-preserved benefit is shown on your member benefit statement, our member portal or can be obtained by calling us on 1800 021 227.

You can request to roll your pension back to an accumulation account and cease your pension payments at any time.

In normal circumstances, your request for a withdrawal (commutation) from your pension will be actioned within 5 Business Days of our receipt of your request.

Requests to rollover benefits to another APRA regulated superannuation fund, will normally be processed within three Business Days. At some times, particularly around the end of financial year and half-year, timeframes for payment or transfers of benefits may be longer.

Transfers to self-managed super funds may take longer to process and require additional information.

Further information is provided on our Withdrawal Form available at australianethical.com.au/super/forms

Payments out of the Fund to a member will only be made by electronic funds transfer to an Australian financial institution. We are not able to make payments by cheque.

What will happen to your benefits if you die?

Death and investment options

When you die your account balance and any other benefits will be distributed by the Trustee of the Fund in accordance with the Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 1993 (SIS Act) and any valid binding death benefit nominations you have made.

1 How a pension works

You can nominate one or more dependants or a legal or personal representative. Under the SIS Act your dependants that you can nominate to receive a benefit include:

- your spouse (this includes de-facto of the same or opposite gender)
- a child
- a person with whom you have an interdependency relationship (as defined in the SIS act)
- someone who is financially dependent on you.

There are different taxation implications to individuals entitled to receive superannuation death benefits following your death. Please refer to section 6 for more information about who is considered a dependant under the tax law.

To help preserve the value of your account balance, when we verify your death, your superannuation balance will be invested in the Defensive investment option if there is no reversionary beneficiary nominated.

Beneficiary nominations

You can make a preferred beneficiary nomination or a binding death benefit nomination on your account. You can also select a reversionary beneficiary (see below).

The most appropriate beneficiary nomination depends on your personal circumstances.

There may be taxation or other implications in nominating a beneficiary, you should seek professional advice before doing so.

Reversionary beneficiary

You can nominate certain dependants to receive your pension as an income stream after your death. In the event of your death and if you have made a valid nomination, your pension will revert to your reversionary beneficiary and pension payments will continue until the account balance is fully paid out or your reversionary beneficiary dies or closes the account. Transfer balance caps apply to income streams paid to a reversionary beneficiary and additional tax may apply. Refer to the ato.gov.au/individuals/Super page for more information on the transfer cap.

Please note, if you have nominated your child as your reversionary beneficiary, your child will receive your pension as an income stream for so long as, they are less than 18 years of age, or if they are over 18 years and were financially dependent on you at the time of your death, until they turn 25.

Except where your child has a disability (see below), your pension must be cashed as a lump sum when your child turns 25.

If your child is over 18 years of age and has a disability of the kind described in the Disability Services Act 1986, your child may continue to receive your pension as an income stream until the account balance is fully paid out or they die or close the account.

You can nominate a reversionary beneficiary on commencement of your pension. It's important to tell us if your circumstances change and you wish to cancel your reversionary beneficiary.

We are bound to pay your benefits in accordance with your reversionary beneficiary instructions if they are valid at the time of your death. If a reversionary nomination is not valid at the time of death, we will take it into account when deciding how to pay your benefit.

Preferred beneficiary

Where you make a preferred beneficiary nomination, we will take into account your nomination, but it will not be binding.

In this situation, in the event of your death, we will pay your benefit to your dependants or legal personal representative in proportions determined by us whilst giving consideration to your preferred nomination.

This allows us to take account of any changes to your personal situation even if you did not previously advise us of these changes.

Binding death benefit nomination

If at the time of your death, you have a valid binding death benefit nomination or a reversionary beneficiary (for a pension), we are bound to pay benefits in accordance with your instructions.

A binding death benefit nomination must comply with superannuation law requirements to be valid and there are restrictions on who can be nominated as a beneficiary.

A binding nomination will expire three years after the nomination is made. If a binding death benefit nomination expires or becomes invalid for any reason, we will no longer be bound by it. We will, however, take it into account in deciding how to pay your benefit. The Binding Death Benefit Nomination form is available at australianethical.com.au/pensions/forms or by calling us on 1800 021 227.

2 Benefits of investing with Australian Ethical Super

Ethical investment

Australian Ethical believes in the transformative power of money to achieve both positive social and environmental outcomes. The Australian Ethical Charter, shown on the next page, guides our ethical investment decisions - what we seek to invest in and what we look to avoid - and also guides our corporate activities beyond our funds.

However, a decision based on ethics alone is not enough. To benefit our members, an investment is only made if it meets the investment criteria for portfolio inclusion with the expectation that all underlying portfolios will generate competitive investment returns over the long term. Australian Ethical's Investment and Ethics research teams work together to provide our members with an ethical portfolio that aims to generate competitive returns over the long term.

Many super funds expose their members to investments in uranium mining, old growth forest logging, weapons, tobacco and gambling. Avoiding these areas, we seek investments in emerging growth sectors such as (but not limited to) renewable energy, technology, efficient transport, recycling and health.

We only make investments which we have assessed to be aligned with our Ethical Charter. We assess whether a company is having a positive impact aligned with one or more of the 12 positive principles of the Charter, and how it is managing harmful impacts under the 11 negative principles. At their heart, the 23 principles of our Charter require us to examine whether a company is part of a better future for people, animals and the environment.

We look at:

- both what the company produces and how the company operates, examining its products and services and how those products and services are produced, marketed, used and mis-used
- the balance between positive and negative effects of the company's activities.

Most activity of humans and companies has some positive and negative impacts, and there are very few people or companies doing everything possible to reduce their planetary footprint. So our investment exclusions include some exceptions and tolerances. A company with positive products and services can remain an ethical investment even though it earns some revenue from a negative product or activity, or if its products and services are used by some in a harmful way. Also, where a company makes a mistake, we don't automatically exclude but we assess whether the mistake indicates a systemic problem, and if the company has acted to fix the mistake and stop it happening again.

More information about the including thresholds for our exclusions, and criteria is available at australianethical.com.au/ethical-criteria

Investments are across a broad spectrum of sectors ranging from new environmental and energy technologies to education, health and financial services. Further information on our ethical investment style is available at australianethical.com.au/ethical-approach

3 Risks of super

Super, like all investments, carries risks.

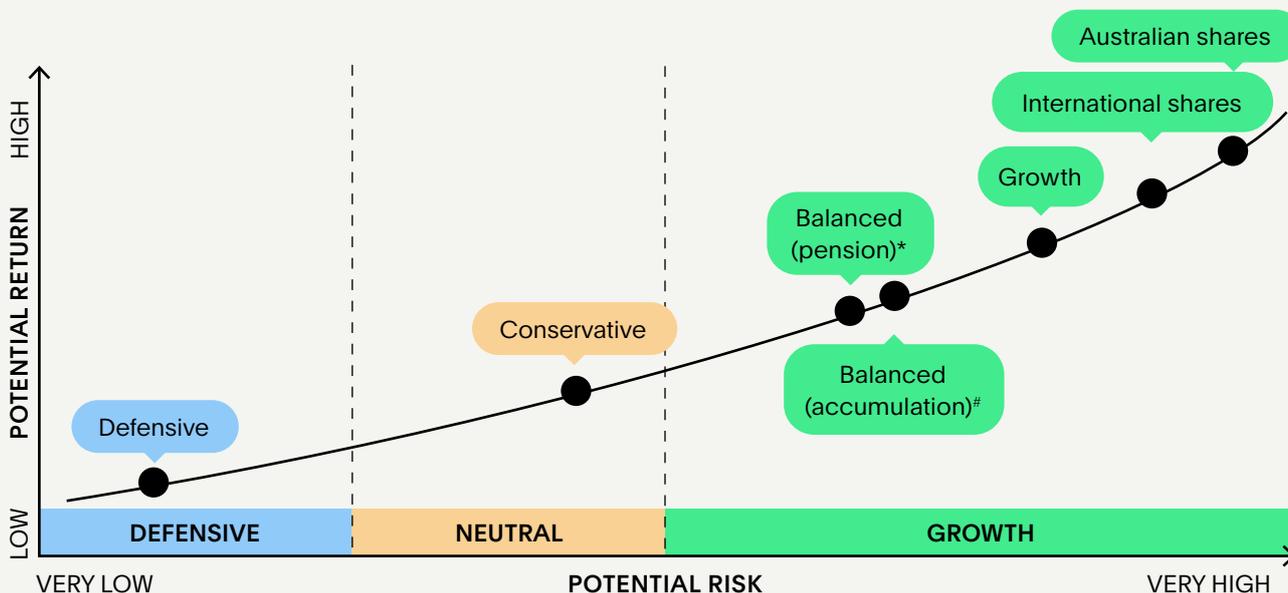

Australian Ethical invests in different types of assets, including Australian shares, international shares, property and fixed interest.

These asset classes behave differently over time and inherently have different levels of risk. Shares, for example, tend to provide higher returns over the long-term, but are more likely to fall in value over the short-term when compared to other asset classes. Fixed interest investments are less volatile over the short-term, but tend to offer lower returns than shares over the long-term.

The investment options offered by Australian Ethical each have a different mix of these asset classes. Some of our investment options only invest in shares while others invest in multiple asset classes.

The level of risk and the returns will depend on the assets each option invests in. Assets with the highest long-term returns may also carry the highest level of short-term risk.

This chart represents the potential risk and return characteristics of our pension investment options. It is not a forecast of actual risk or returns. The scale is indicative only.

This option is only available in the accumulation and transition to retirement division

* This option is only available in the pension division

The acceptable level of risk appropriate for each person will vary depending on a range of factors including your age, investment timeframes, your risk tolerance, and where other parts of your wealth are invested. You should assess your personal situation carefully before you choose an investment option.

When considering your investment in super, it is important to understand that:

- the value of your investment will go up and down depending on the market prices of the assets held by your investment option
- returns for any investment option are not guaranteed and will vary

- you may lose some or all of your money
- future investment returns may differ from past returns
- the amount of your future super savings (including contributions and returns) may not be enough to provide adequately for your retirement
- superannuation laws may change in the future
- in the event of extreme market volatility, the trustee of the Fund reserves the right to suspend unit pricing on any or all investment options
- the level of risk, each person may be willing to accept will vary depending on a range of factors, including age, investment time frames, other investments held, and their risk tolerance.

4 How we invest your money

Australian Ethical Super offers members something beyond conventional superannuation investment because it applies a combination of financial and ethical objectives to the selection of investments.

Labour standards, environmental, social and ethical issues

All of Australian Ethical’s investment decisions are guided by the Australian Ethical Charter. It sets out the types of activities we seek to support, and the types of activities we seek to avoid. We believe Australian Ethical’s process of ethical analysis is one of the most rigorous in Australia.

All investments are periodically reviewed. If a company we invest in has diversified into an excluded industry or engaged in unacceptable practices, we reassess the investment which may involve engagement with the company to address the issues. If the investment is no longer appropriate it will be sold.

Standard Risk Measure

Each of our investment options has a risk label that has been evaluated using the Standard Risk Measure.

The Standard Risk Measure is based on industry guidance to allow you to compare investment options that are expected to deliver a similar number of negative annual returns over any 20 year period.

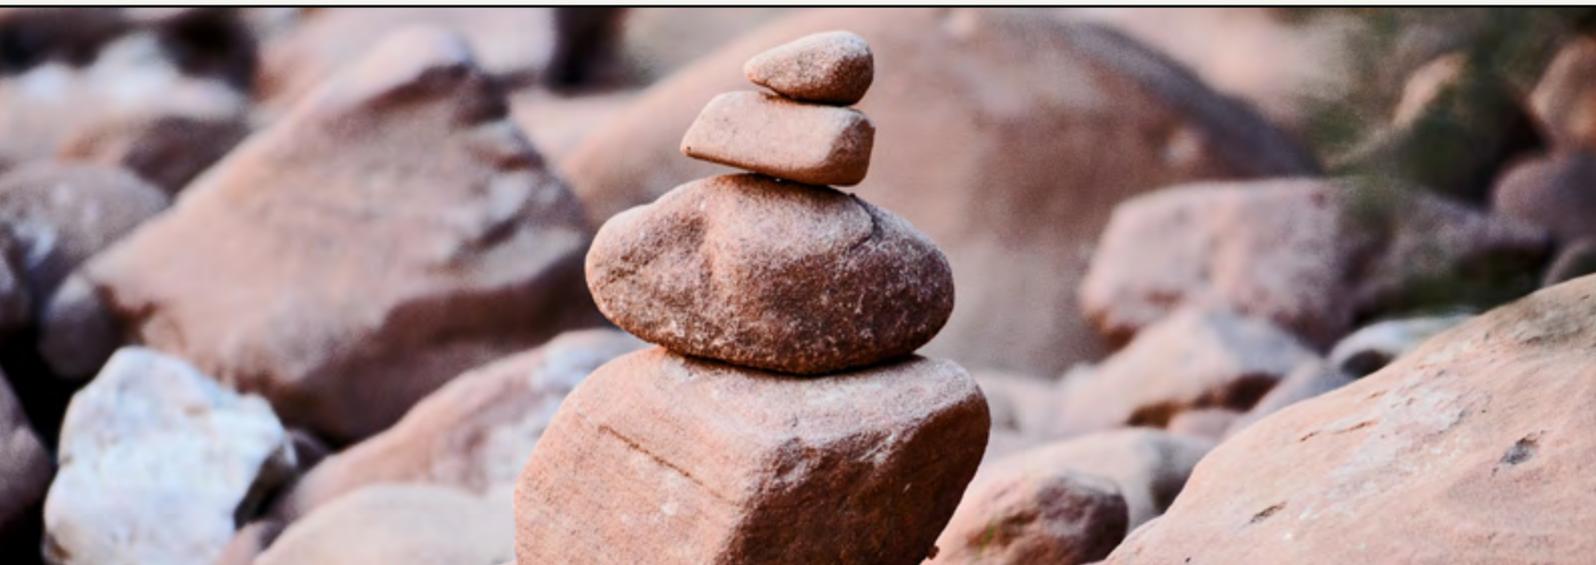

The Standard Risk Measure is not a complete assessment of all forms of investment risk. For instance it does not detail what the size of a negative return could be or the potential for a positive return to be less than you may require to meet your objectives. Further, it does not take into account the impact of administration fees and tax.

You should still ensure you are comfortable with the risks and potential losses associated with your chosen investment option(s).

Risk Band	Risk Label	Estimated number of negative annual returns over any 20 year period
1	Very low	Less than 0.5
2	Low	0.5 to less than 1
3	Low to medium	1 to less than 2
4	Medium	2 to less than 3
5	Medium to high	3 to less than 4
6	High	4 to less than 6
7	Very high	6 or greater

Investment options hedging

Australian Ethical does not currently directly hedge any investment option that has international currency exposure but may in the future. The underlying investment manager may from time-to-time hedge the currency exposure.

Fee discounts

The following fee discounts are provided:

Discount	Discount amount	How and when discount applied
Large account balance
Balance between $250,000 and $349,999	0.02% per annum	The discount will be calculated on your pension account balance at the end of each month and credited to your account at that time. The amount of the discount will be credited to your investment options in accordance with your investment profile.

The amount of the discount will be credited to your investment options in accordance with your investment profile for future contributions.

If you are eligible for both the large account balance discount and the association membership discount, the higher of the two discounts will apply.

5 Fees and costs

Additional explanation of fees and costs

Adviser service fees

If your investment is made through a licensed financial adviser then the following fee arrangements may apply:

- Upon your instruction, adviser fees of up to $8,000 p.a. (including GST) can be deducted from your account. This one-off fee can be deducted as one amount or can be spread out over a 12 month period. After the 12 months, the fee will cease automatically and a new form will be required for any new fee arrangements as negotiated with your adviser.
- Fees paid to your adviser are in addition to our management fees. Adviser service fees are deducted from your account at the end of the month. If there are insufficient funds in your account on the deduction date, the adviser service fee will not be deducted.

Transaction costs and buy-sell spreads

Transactional costs are calculated at 30 June each year based on the previous 12 months. Transaction costs are taxes, duties and other costs (such as brokerage and implicit costs such as the bid-ask spread which is the difference between the price the buyer is willing to pay and the selling price) including transaction costs from interposed vehicles.

The buy-sell spread is a fee to recover transaction costs incurred in relation to the sale and purchase of assets of the Fund and is used to adjust the unit price. It is an additional cost to you and is incurred when you contribute, transfer, invest, switch, withdraw or rollover. We will use a buy-sell spread to recover transaction costs from you so that other members are not paying for the cost of your transaction. It is not a fee paid to us.

The buy-sell spread for each option is included on page 20.

We may vary the buy-sell spread from time to time if transaction costs change. Notice will not normally be provided; however updated information will be available on our website and in regular communications.

Indirect costs

The indirect cost ratio is calculated based on the previous 12 months. These costs may change from year to year. Indirect costs represent the approximate amounts deducted from your investment and covers amounts that have reduced the return on your investment but are not charged as a fee. This includes costs associated with external asset managers.

Family law fees

We do not charge fees when providing family law-related services such as payment flagging, payment splitting and information applications.

Applicants and members should also be aware that any legal or court costs incurred by us in relation to a member account may be payable.

GST

Goods and services tax (GST) is not payable on the issue, withdrawal or transfer of units in the Fund, as these are input-taxed financial supplies for GST purposes. When fees and costs are shown in this section (unless otherwise stated) the net cost of GST is included. If the GST rate or arrangements change, the total amount you pay may change even though fees due to us are not increased.

Changes to fees

In the future, we may vary the fees payable on your account. We will provide notice of fee increases at least 30 days prior to any changes taking effect.

6 How super is taxed

Important...

The information is a guide to how super is taxed and is based on tax laws that were current as at the date of the PDS. This information is not a substitute for professional advice. Further information is available from the ATO. It is also strongly recommended that you seek advice from a professional taxation adviser on your particular circumstances.

The tax treatment of superannuation is concessional but complex and may be subject to regulatory change. The tax information provided in this document is based on tax laws that were current when this document was prepared. Rates may change in the future, and you should consider seeking professional tax advice that is tailored to your personal circumstances before making a decision.

The tax payable on rollovers, pension payments and withdrawals will depend on your age, who is receiving the benefit and the tax-free portion of your account balance.

When you commence your pension, a portion of your super may be tax-free depending on how you contributed to super while you were working. Your tax-free component will be calculated as a percentage of your account when you commence your pension.

Pension payments and withdrawals from your pension will be taken from the tax-free and taxable components of your pension in the proportion that they were held when you commenced your pension.

Tax on rollovers

Generally, a benefit rolled over to the Fund from another Australian superannuation fund will not be taxed at the time of the rollover. The exception is when the rollover contains an untaxed component, in which case that component will be taxed at 15%. A higher rate of tax also applies to transfers which exceed the untaxed plan cap amount, which for the 2021/22 income year is $1,615,000.

Taxation of pension payments

If you are aged 60 or over, no tax is payable on pension payments you draw from your pension unless you have an untaxed portion in your taxed component.

If you are under age 60, no tax is payable on the tax-free portion of your pension payments. A tax offset of 15% is available if you are at or above preservation age, unless you have an untaxed portion in your taxed component. If you have not provided your tax file number, the taxable component will be taxed at the highest marginal rate plus the Medicare Levy.

Please refer to the table below which outlines various tax rates depending on your circumstances.

Taxation of fund earnings

Earnings on your superannuation investment in the pension division are tax-free if you are retired and 15% for a transition to retirement pension.

Additional tax may apply if you exceed your Transfer Balance Cap. It is recommended that you seek advice from a licensed taxation or financial adviser before commencing a pension.

Tax on withdrawals

The tax you pay on withdrawals from super is dependent on your age, the amount you are withdrawing, and the taxable and tax-free components of your benefit. The tax components of your benefit are shown on your member annual statement.

Different tax rates apply to death and disability benefits and for people permanently departing Australia.

It is recommended that you seek advice from a licensed taxation or financial adviser if you are interested in receiving a lump sum payment or an account-based income stream (pension) before the age of 60.

6 How super is taxed

Your age at withdrawal	Component	Tax rate*
Under your preservation age	Tax-free component	0%
	Taxed [^] component	20% plus Medicare Levy
Between your preservation age and 60	Tax-free component	0%
	Taxed [^] component	0% on benefits up to the low-rate cap [#] 15% plus Medicare Levy on benefits above the low-rate cap [#]
60 or above	All components	0%

* Additional tax will be payable if you have not provided your tax file number.

[^] The tax rate for a taxed component may be higher if you have an untaxed portion in your taxed component.

[#] The low-rate cap for 2021/22 is $225,000 and is indexed in line with average weekly ordinary time earnings (AWOTE). This is a lifetime limit and applies to all Australian superannuation funds.

Tax on death and terminal illness benefits

Death benefits paid as a lump sum

A lump sum death benefit payment will be tax-free if paid to a person who is a dependant of the deceased member at the time of death, as defined in the tax legislation.

A dependant is:

- a spouse or former spouse
- a child aged under 18
- a person with whom the deceased had an interdependency relationship just before death
- any person who was financially dependent on the deceased member before death.

If a lump-sum benefit is paid to a non-dependant, tax is payable on the taxable component.

The definition of dependant for tax purposes does not include adult children unless they were financially dependent on the deceased member. Members should seek professional estate planning advice, particularly if they intend to leave superannuation benefits to non-dependants.

Beneficiary Type	Component	Tax rate
Dependant	All	0%
Non-dependant [^]	Tax-free	0%
	Taxable (taxed)	15% plus Medicare Levy
	Taxable (untaxed)	30% plus Medicare Levy
Estate	All	See note*

* Taxation of death benefits paid to the estate depends on whether the ultimate beneficiaries are dependants.

[^] A higher rate of tax will apply if a non-dependant has not provided their tax file number.

Death benefits paid to a reversionary

The taxation of a death benefit paid as a reversionary pension will depend on your age at the time of your death, the age of your reversionary beneficiary and if the reversionary beneficiary has exceeded their Transfer Balance Cap when receiving the benefit.

We recommend seeking tax advice before nominating a reversionary beneficiary.

6 How super is taxed

If the member is aged 60 or over at the time of death, then payments to the reversionary beneficiary will be tax free. If the member is under age 60 at the time of death, the pension will be taxed at the reversionary beneficiary's marginal tax rate (less any deductible amount and 15% tax offset) unless, or until, the reversionary beneficiary is aged 60 or over, in which case the pension becomes tax free. Tax may apply if you have an untaxed portion in your taxed component.

Benefits received due to terminal illness

Benefits released to a member with a terminal medical condition will be tax-free. Further information on the eligibility for a terminal illness benefit is provided in the Insurance Guide available on our website.

Tax on disability withdrawals

Benefits paid to you when you become permanently incapacitated (as defined by superannuation law) receive concessional tax treatment. Your tax-free component may be increased to take into account the period where you could have expected to be gainfully employed if the disability had not occurred.

Quoting your tax file number

It is your decision whether you give us your tax file number (TFN), although we strongly recommend it. Declining to quote a TFN to us is not an offence.

Under the Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 1993, Australian Ethical Super is authorised to collect, use and disclose your tax file number.

The Trustee may disclose your TFN to another superannuation provider, when your benefits are being transferred, unless you request the trustee of your superannuation fund in writing that your TFN not be disclosed to any other superannuation provider.

Other information

Cooling off

You have a 14-day cooling-off period after making your investment to ensure you are comfortable with your decision to invest. You will need to tell us in writing if you change your mind. The cooling off period starts at the earlier of the date you receive confirmation from us of an initial contribution to your account, or five Business Days after the initial contribution to your account is accepted.

If you exercise your right to cool off, preserved and restricted non-preserved amounts can only be rolled over to another fund – they cannot be paid directly to you.

The amount rolled over or repaid will be adjusted to take into account the increase or decrease in the value of the investment from the date it was invested until the date we receive the notification from you, as well as any transaction costs and reasonable administrative fees.

The cooling off period does not apply in some situations including switches between investment options and any investment in respect of which an investor has already exercised rights as a member of the Fund.

Account closure

If your account reaches a $0 balance, we will automatically close your account.

If you join the Fund and we haven't received any funds in your account within 4 months of the date of opening the account, we may automatically close your account.
