Total returns are calculated using the sell (exit) price, net of management fees and gross of tax as if distributions of income have been reinvested at the actual distribution reinvestment price. The actual returns received by an investor will depend on the timing, buy and exit prices of individual transactions. Return of capital and the performance of your investment in the fund are not guaranteed. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. Figures showing a period of less than one year have not been adjusted to show an annual total return. Figures for periods of greater than one year are on a per annum compound basis. The current benchmark may not have been the benchmark over all periods shown in the above chart and tables. The calculation of the benchmark performance links the performance of previous benchmarks and the current benchmark over the relevant time periods.

Commentary

Over the June Quarter, the Australian Ethical Income Fund returned 0.10% after fees, slightly outperforming the benchmark Bloomberg Ausbond Bank Bills Index which returned 0.01% for the quarter.

The Income Fund objective is to reflect short-term interest rates. The return of both the fund and the benchmark for the quarter reflect the exceptionally low yield available for short-duration interest bearing investments, as the Reserve Bank of Australia maintains a cash rate target of 0.10% and continues its yield curve control target through to the April 2024 Government Bond, also at 0.10%. High levels of liquidity in the market mean that the return available for short-duration government securities, particularly those with less than 1 year to maturity, are trading well below that level.

The Fund outperformance for the quarter owes to the Fund's holdings in bank senior unsecured floating rate notes, term deposits, mortgage and asset backed securities, and corporate credit, though the prevailing low yield environment has suppressed returns from these instruments. Also, they remain at a premium to the bank bill rates that comprise the index.

In the near term, the outlook for short term money markets remains one of subdued returns, with near-zero bank bill rates reflecting the abundance of available liquidity in the market. While maintaining a book of high-quality liquid assets and short average duration, the Fund will continue to see to augment these holdings other credit exposures.
